...ANNOUNCEMENT..

Friends and Patrons:

Thanking our many customers for past favors, we hope to merit a continuance of the same by fair dealing and sending out only strong, well rooted, first-class stock, as a result of frequent transplanting and careful culture.

CARE OF STOCK AND PLANTING.

Unpack soon as receired; if dry moisten and keep moist and out of sun and wind till planted. This is imperative with evergreens, the sap of which, being resinous when once dried, never again liquifies. If not ready to plant at once, heel in a trench in an inclined position, packing earth around roots; planting can then be done at leisure taking one or two plants out at a time.

Pruning. Cut away all bruised or broken roots with a sharp knife. It is also necessary to cut back the branches, but just how much depends on amount of roots. If few or poor roots prune branches more closely, and in case of peach trees cut back severely. Roses also do better if cut back during winter or early spring. Dig a larger hole than the roots require and a little deeper than necessary for.tree and fill in with good soil, sufficient to leare tree about same depth as when in nursery. When nearly filled with fine earth, shake tree up and down then pack earth firmly. Should it be impossible for any reason to get earth among roots thoroughly in this way, use a "punching" stick, three or four feet long and about one inch in diameter, point slightly rounded. It is a good plan to mulch all trees and plants after planting.

If manure is needed in planting, it should be well rotted and thoroughly mixed with soil. Use no manure for evergreens.

Should fruit or other deciduous trees arrive in a very dry condition, bury in moist earth for two or three days.
